

Please, please, please do not allow cell phones to be used during flights. As it is now, people disregard the ban on cell phone usage on airplanes. I cannot imagine a worse fate than having to sit next to some businessperson who decides he/she needs to conduct their business affairs continuously during a long flight, or some other person who just wants to wile away the hours on the airplane talking to every friend they have. Talk about being held hostage--there would be no opportunity on most flights to change seats, or get away from the noise of everyone using their cell phones. I can see allowing it in special circumstances, i.e. if the flight is significantly delayed. But please don't allow it.
